

Meri Meri

Get in the spooky spirit of Halloween with Meri Meri

Little Ones Are In For A Real Treat This Halloween With Meri Meri's Bewitching Collection Of Partyware And Dressing-Up Accessories.

New for this year is a fantastical arch made up of 40 contrasting balloons and hanging paper bats – the ultimate way to let trick or treaters know that you're in on the festivities. Meanwhile the reusable ghost garland and giant spider balloons are perfect for decking out the home.

Halloween Motif Garland, £13.50

Halloween Surprise Balls, £12.50

Halloween Icon Cupcake Kit, £12

For ghoulish tea parties, the new surprise balls each feature a small gift and make exciting table favours. They are also creative alternatives to sweets when it comes to trick-or-treating. New frame plates starring Dracula, pumpkins and witches look as impactful displayed on walls as they do on a tabletop.

Little revellers who love dressing-up are spoilt for choice. From the pretty, tulle-laden swan outfits to the black witch's cape and cobweb tutu, there is something to suit every personality. Bat wings, butterfly wings and lion headdresses instantly transform outfits, with the new bejewelled cat ear headband sure to captivate little felines.

The fun continues with playful sticker sets and new glow-in-the-dark tattoos while cupcake kits and spooky cutter sets add a fun dimension to baking devilishly good treats.

Mini Star Witch Hats, £12

Halloween Glow Tattoos, £8.25

Sparkle Cat Ear Headband, £13.50

Halloween Surprise Balls, £12.50

Bat Bow Glitter Hair Clips, £7.50

Halloween Motif Frame Plates, £5.75

About Meri Meri

The story started in Los Angeles in 1985. Meredith (who's childhood nickname was Meri Meri) sitting at her kitchen table with some scissors, pens and a big pot of glitter. The first Meri Meri cards were made that way.

The magic began... Local Stationery stores in Los Angeles loved her cards and asked for more. One kitchen table and one pair of scissors weren't enough: soon Meredith needed many kitchen tables and an enormous pot of glitter. Then, in 1987, Meri Meri presented its little range of handmade cards at the National Stationery Show in New York. The response was phenomenal. Pretty soon prestigious stores such as Bergdorf Goodman were ordering the Meri Meri range for their Christmas season. Cue more kitchen tables and great big sacks of glitter!

The company grew from that little network of mothers working from home from Meredith's designs and direction. Today, Meri Meri doesn't design on kitchen tables; the team has grown to about 100 people with offices in San Francisco, USA and a creative team based in Cheltenham, England in an old building overlooking an ancient churchyard. But the team still has its scissors, pens and all the glitter.

Meri Meri products are sold all over the world. Life is a little busier than it used to be. Stay tuned to Meri Meri's new exciting projects.

Press Contact

maryline@cartableenfants.com

Tel: 07925828008