

The Middle Daughter AW20: an ode to William Morris

This season, British girlsweare brand The Middle Daughter takes inspiration from the late iconic textile designer, William Morris. A playful new print, 'Flora & Fauna' interprets Morris' signature embrace of nature and symmetry, and features a busy menagerie of quintessentially British wildlife such as swans, badgers, owls, roses and buttercups.

One iteration of this enchanting design features on a navy blue background and is brought to life across cotton tiered midi skirts, prairie-style dresses and a puffball dress. The other version adorns a bold coral shade as little vignettes upon peplum-frilled A-line skirts and voluminous dresses.

The AW20 collection also features the highly original silhouettes for which The Middle Daughter has quickly become known for: taffeta dresses with balloon sleeves in opulent jewel tones, carnival-esque stripy tops with structured shoulders and generously tiered dresses that are too good to save for best.
